SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1920.

THE ELKS' TRIUMPH.

Last week will pass into history as the greatest Chicago ever saw in the way of a great crowd, a big parade and a myriad of visitors.

The Elks parade was the most wonderful ever seen and the crowd which witnessed it numbered over a million people.

Too much credit cannot be given to the managers of the preparations for Elks week.

Exalted Ruler W. J. Sinek of Chicago lodge deserves much praise.

Dr. Robert A. Smith, general chairman of all of the arrangements made a success of everything he undertook.

Arthur W. Johnson, who had charge of the building and street decorations covered himself and the city with glory. Chicago never looked so well since it came into being.

Harry A. Beale, the chairman of the committee on floats certainly did well. The floats were a wonderful feature of the parade.

Charles B. Willey, chairman of the committee on athletics deserves great credit for the unequalled and entertaining athletic program.

To enumerate everyone who aided in making the week of July 5 to 10 the greatest Chicago ever saw would fill columns.

But we cannot allow the opportunity to go by without congratulating Chief of Police John J. Garrity on the ability with which the crowds were handled. We do this because some have been prone to criticize. When it is remembered that the crowd was unprecedented in size; that no one looked for such an outpouring of people and that not one accident or fatality occurred, Colonel Garrity and his men cannot be praised too highly.

AUTOS KILL 261 IN 6 MONTHS; 113 CHILDREN DIE.

Two hundred and sixty-one men, women and children of Chicago have met death in automobile accidents since Dec. 1, 1919, according to reports totaled by the coroner's office. The number exceeds that of any year prior to 1916. In 1919 there were 420 fatalities.

As the result of the investigation of coroner's juries into these deaths ten drivers have been held to the grand jury on charges of manslaughter, one for murder, and six as accessories. Four unidentified drivers, who fled after killing persons, were ordered apprehended on charges of manslaughter and one on a charge of murder.

The number of children killed was 113. By the deaths of adults, fifty-two children and forty-one widows were left dependent upon charity.

Of the total number of accidents, 135 were those in which but one machine figured.

Two persons were asphyxiated by gas from the engine while working in their garages.

In the PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Hibben on Modern Manners

Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, is neither bilious nor choleric. Ordinarily he is pleasant, optimistic rather than pessimistic, and temperate of speech. But he certainly delivered a scathing baccalaureate sermon at commencement the other day on the modern dress, dances, music and manners. Moreover, he sticks to what he said and even amplifies it. He says, among other things:

"Our problem in America, is a moral problem. All our troubles come down to a loosening of the moral fiber of the nation. That is the reason for the general unrest. It is the cause of strikes and the workman's failure to give full work for full pay. It is what makes the profiteers. It is what makes the bolsheviks. And at the bottom of it all is the loss of reverence for womanhood. When that goes everything else goes with it."

Something is gone from men that nothing can replace. "We need a general moral tightening up and when we get that we will return to the conditions of ten years ago."

Let Us Hope He's No Misnomer

George B. Christian, Jr., is the name of a man who is likely to be quite busy until election day—and possibly thereafter. Anyway, he's Senator Harding's secretary. No longer does the "Mr. Harding" door in the senate office building respond to the friendly knock, says a writer in the New York Times. Down the hall the human flies gathered about the open door of an anterior room suggest possible entry.

A young man comes forward with hand outstretched. If a single word is chosen to describe him it will be neighborly. "My name is Christian," he says, "what can I do for you?" You recognize the senator's secretary, lesser ego of our chief Republican.

Like master like man. Practically he is the small pea shelled out of the end of the same pod; as devoid of angles or guile as a buckeye, as pleasant as a lozenge, intelligent, alert, receptive; and as poised as the center of population of United States. Out of the heavy and surging waters rises a restful gray head topped broad and comfortable shoulders. A word here, a nod there, a smile across, and then a hearty call, "Now, Christian, you 'tend to all these folks here and I'll go inside."

New Head of General Federation

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis, Minn., is the new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, elected at the recent biennial convention at Des Moines, Iowa. Alice Ames Winter was born in 1865 at Albany, N. Y., the daughter of Rev. Charles G. and Julia Frances (Baker) Ames. She was graduated from Wellesley college in 1886 and received an A. M. degree in 1890. In 1892 she was married to Thomas G. Winter. She is the author of "The Prize to the Hardy" (1905) and "Jewel-Wood" (1907). Mrs. Winter has long been prominent in the general federation. She succeeds Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles.

The general federation has a membership of about 2,500,000 federated club women, with state federations in each of the several states. It maintains a Washington headquarters. It has eleven divisions of work, and is in charge of the roadside planting operations of the Lincoln highway. The other officers elected are: First vice president, Mrs. William Jennings, Florida; second vice president, Mrs. J. R. Schermerhorn, New Jersey; recording secretary, Mrs. Adam Weiss, Colorado; treasurer, Mrs. B. B. Clark, Iowa; auditor, Mrs. H. A. Guild, Arizona.

Mrs. Crosby on Women in Politics

Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, who has been called the "Mother of New York Women Democrats," was a delegate to the San Francisco convention. She is emphatic in expressing her belief that the millions of American women whose political status is changed by federal amendment to citizenship are going to become a power for good in the nation.

"All American women," she says, "are sufferers from the profiteers. We must fight them and I am sure we have ingenuity enough to devise a way to defeat them and, in other ways, to bring down the cost of living."

"The worst profiteer of all is the profiteer in houses and land. The increment of land, the rental value, must be taken for public revenue or the people will stagger under their taxes till they drop."

Mrs. Crosby declares that "with the change in the political status of women next fall" there will come, however, no violent change in governmental affairs.

Claxton on School Conditions

More than 300,000 children in the United States were deprived of schooling during the last year because of the shortage of teachers, the national citizens' conference on education was informed by United States Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton, at the recent conference in Washington.

American elementary schools are facing a net loss of 80,000 teachers next year, Commissioner Claxton said. There will be 110,000 vacancies and only 30,000 graduates of teacher training institutes to fill them.

"The new conditions require that the schools shall be more efficient and more effective than they have been in the past," Doctor Claxton asserted. "We are faced with the danger that they may not be as effective in the past. There seems little chance of immediate relief."

Practically all the delegates testified to a critical condition, with the
